Are you having enough fun? Take the FUN TEST!

"I always like to keep conversation starters around me. It can make a work environment more fun. Every time somebody sees my Simpsons interactive action figures and environments they smile and reminisce about the show. It can be a great ice-breaker."

"Close to a dozen Stikfas habitat the edge of my desk in a diorama form. About twice daily, someone will stop by to either rearrange the scene or the figures. If it comes out particularly good, it often turns into an office social."

"I bought a complete set of Where the Wild Things Are figures as a birthday gift for my sister last year. We both loved the book when we were growing up. Her nickname has been Max for years. It was a huge sentimental success."

"I'm a sucker for Lord of the Rings collector items. I don't know what it is but it's the closest you can come to being a part of the terrific trilogy without having actually been in it."

"I have tons of action figures, busts and statues on my desk -- Marvel Legends, Godzilla, Star Trek, Muppets, Simpsons, Warcraft, Diablo, McFarlane, various bits and pieces. It keeps the office setting from being sterile and reminds me of Ray Bradbury's work area. They help spark creativity, something I need in my work."

"I'm a huge Star Wars fan so every time I buy a few figures, I usually buy one or two for my niece and nephew. There's nothing like giving a gift to two young ones and seeing that smile on their faces as they hold a new Darth Maul or Princess Leia figure."

In 2001 McFarlane Toys licensed Maurice Sendak's classic children's book "Where the Wild Things Are" and produced a set of beautifully detailed figures. People looking to find a very special gift, or a work of art snatched these highly anticipated figures up immediately. Most were pre-ordered by the time we received our shipment, and by the end of 2001 these figures were gone. People asked about them long after they were sold out, but no more were available. Indeed, McFarlane had limited their production run.

"Usually once a week I bring one of my loose Star Wars figures to work with me. The figure sits on a counter in view of everyone, which often provokes some questions: 'Now, who is this one again?' or 'What does this guy do?' Of course, this leads to a brief education followed by a response about 'Star Wars geekiness' or some remark about the Force. But it seems to provide everyone with some entertainment, so what are you gonna do?..."
